

Like most subscribers to satellite radio I was fed up with FM radio,s contempt for the listeners by giving us the same old things over and over again, the same old worn out top 40 of what ever decade or era and the endless commercials. How many times can you listen to the Supremes, Oh, Oh Baby love?. XM radio is a godsend, it offers almost limitless variety and on their music streams, no commercials. Its wonderful. I don't mind paying the the $9.99 a month but as would be expected the big FM Broadcasters such as Clear Channel I'm sure are begining to get nervous and they don't want to be forced to compete with what clearly seems to be the wave of the future, They want us all back listening to their FM radio stations with the 2 or 3 songs that are cut up to be shorter that the original releases so they can fit in the 7 or 8 commercials. Now they want to limit XM radio's attempt to customize some of the content for the consumer such as wheather reports and so on and it won't end with that. This confrontation between Satellite and FM radio was inevitable, sooner or later the big FM broadcasters such as Clear Channel were going to try to use their muscle to try and squash the clear and present danger to their monopoly but we won't let them succeed. Their day is ending and they are begining to realize it
